POLITICAL WIND BLOWS COLD AROUND MOLLET Honeymoon Is Over

By HAROLD KING

Paris, Nov. 25. Failure to complete the Franco-British military action in the Suez Canal zone as originally planned has put an end to the honeymoon period between the Socialist-led government of M. Guy Mollet and the French National Assembly.

Unlike public opinion in Britain, French public opinion backed the Government fully over Sucz and was aiready recolutely united behind the Government because of the situation in Algeria where 1,200,000 people of French origin have their homes.

In the Assembly M. Mollet has had the unquestioned backing of all groups from moderate Conservatives to Socialists for the past nine and a half months during which he has obtained 23 votes of confidence, a record number.

Canal enterprise has failed to success, the pacifirt and pro-Mendes members of the Socialist parliamentary group are beginning to stir.

A number of leading non-parliamentary Socialists have written an open letter, to the party secretary describing the Mollet Government as "a coalltion Cabinet without principles" depending on its existence on Conservative votes. So far none of the hundred Socials t members of the Assembly have signed this letter, but at least 20 of them are known to agree with it

When this finesse held, South was home. He led the ten o diamonds and allowed this ride also when West played low.

Dummy could then win the rest of the diamonds, and South was sure of six diamond tricks. This was one trick more than he actunlly needed.

When South let the jack of diamonds ride, he didn't know | beautifully-groomed woman, that the finesse would succeed. If he lost the trick, he would be able to win the next diamond in his hand with the ten, after which dummy could take the rest of the diamonds. Five diamond tricks would be enough for the contract.

South wasn't worried about the spades, even if he lost the first diamond trick. If East could ties, too." lead another spade, the suit would break evenly and South would lose only three spade tricks in addition to the queen of diamonds.

The important point was that South could not afford to lead a diamond to dummy's acc. In order to begin that suit. South could then return to his hand of diamonds, but West would to force out dummy's king. The diamonds would then block, and South would win only four dinmond tricks. This would not only eight tricks.

SINGAPORE'S CONFIDENCE DRAINING.

By "TOUCHWOOD"

If ever I saw a team with a defeatist look imprinted on them it was Singapore's yesterday, a pathetic collection of young players most of whom probably would never make the grade as First Division foothallers over here. They had no idea of the way to get past the solid defence of the Hongkong Selection because they lacked knowledge of the hasic fundamentals of the game.

Singapore's lack-lustre display provided some of the most dismal football I or anyone else on the ground had seen for a long time. The Hongkong Selection, too, had their faults, but they made far fewer bad passes than their opponents.

The Colony team played with Radin All (inside-loft) and Maisoor craffed in a goal more dash and cohesion Canan Johan (outside-right) - which had Turn Nai-huen especially in the first half and started some moves which beaten all the way. ### PROCESSED CHEESE PRODUCTION IN SWISS FACTORY principle of processing pasteurizing cheese was developed in Switzerland some 40 years ago, and was the result of year-long researches to improve the shelf-life of Swiss Cheese and to give it a protective packing of smaller weight. The big wheels of Emmental Cheese of about 200 lb. were too delicate for the inadequate shipping and storage facilities existing at that time, and often too heavy for convenient distribution.

The processing and pasteurize until it passes the filling nozzle. ing method brought the solution an accurate device for adjusting to the problem. It consists of the weights of the individual melting the cheese with the relettion of an emulsifying A shell of aluminium or tin agent (citric acid, phosphates, fold, automatically labelled, cut ete ) under controlled heat to and formed by the machine. el sure comple e pusteurization, receives the cheese from the The result is a product of a filler Then a lid, cut from a be ter keeping quality, uniform second roll of foil, is placed in texture, ecomposi ion and flavour, position and a folding, pressing This method, at the same time, :: I heat-sealing device compermitted the production of pletes the individual portions. smaller sales units of practically Every six or twelve portions any desirable size, shape and are packed together into round cardboard boxes and brought to

The two main advantages, long shelf-life and handy packages, assured the ever-increasing Where boxes have to be success of pasicurized processed provided with a top label, they cheere not only in tropical but are in almost every market of the automatic labelling machine world. ### Active Interest

A Swiss engineering firm. Kustner Bros. & Co., Ltd. of Gereva, soon took active interest in the technical problems of the industry and became the recognized leaders in this special field. To jay, their processing and packaging machines operate all over the world. They are extensively used in the "Tiger" Cheese Plant and will be referred to in For the SOUTH CHINA the step by step explanation of the flow sheet below.

> (1) Removing the Crust.-The raw material used in Swi'zerland consists exclusively of the geruine Emmental and Gruyere loaf Cheeses. Af er careful selection of the raw cheeses to provide consistent quality and flavour in the final product, the crust is removed from the large and heavy wheels.

> (2) Cutting.—Before passing through the shredding machine the loaves are cut into straps permitting an additional and very thorough quality check. Hitherto hidden defects will easily be detected.

(3) Shredding. — In operation the cut wheels and the shredding machine operate by means of a stuffing worm pressing the cheese against knives and a perforated die plate.

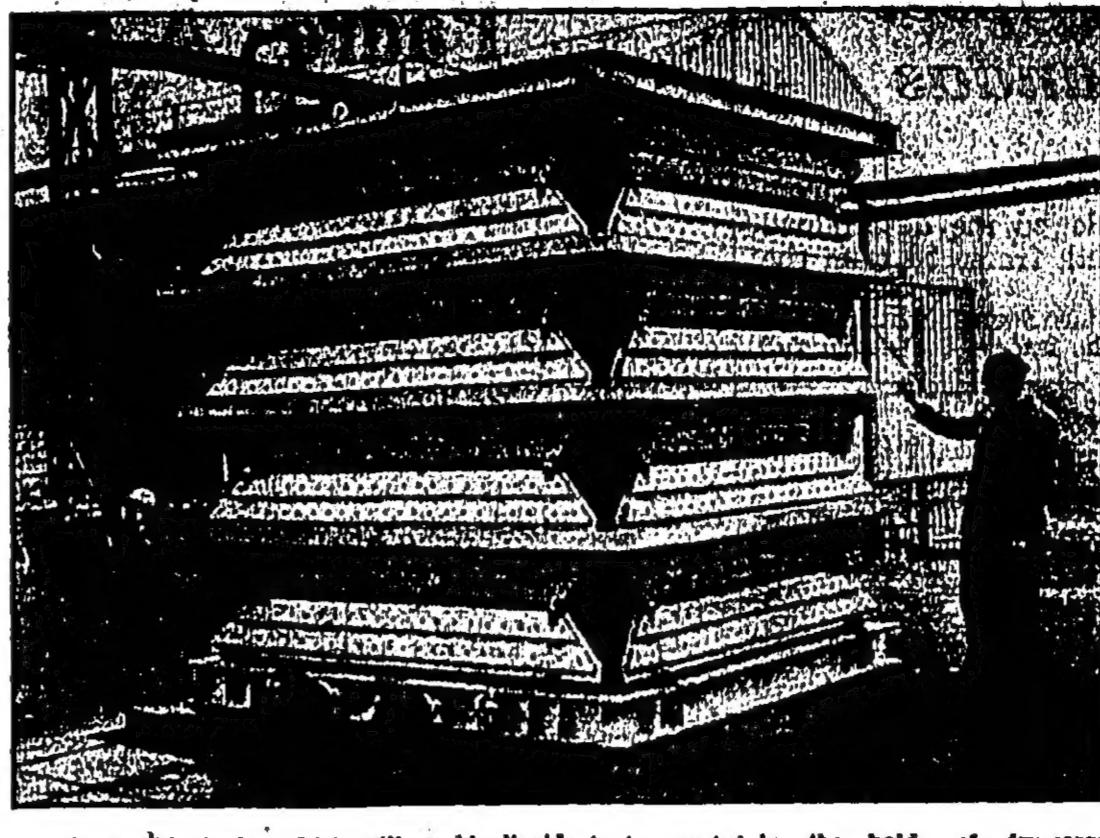

(4) Refining.—To grind up all hard lumps remaining in the cheese after shredding, it is passed through a vertical refiner with three granite rollers. The result is a fine cheese paste.

(5) Processing and Pasteurisation -After addition of the emulsifying agent, the cheese processed pasteurized in the melting keitles. The melting takes place under vacuum and by injection of steam into the mass which is simultaneously mixed by a built-in stirrer to allow full penetration of the steam.

Large Battery

Instead of the 'conventional high capacity kettles, Roethlisbergers are using a large battery of small cooking pans operating on the same principles but treating 2 ib. only of cheese at a time. The higher cost of this unique process, is more than compensated, however, by the quality thus obtained. An individual and careful treatment is essential to fully retain the original, delicate, nutty flavour, in the finished product.

(6) Automatic Filling and Wrapping. From the cooking pans, the warm and semi-liquid processed chaese is fed into the hopper of the automatic filling and wrapping machine. This hopper, double jacketed for steam heating, maintains the cheese in a semi-liquid condition

Collapsible tanks which will enable liquids to be carried in the holds of dry-cargo versels have recently been tried out in Britain. In this picture the tank is seen in the extended position.

This British invention enables ships to carry liquid in one direction and on the return voyage the tank can be collapsed to allow dry cargo to be stowed on top. It is designed for carrying crude oil and petroloum products. The later models are expected to be suitable for containing edible oils and wine. Barically the tank consists of a collapsible fabric-reinforced synthetic rubber bar contained in light alloy tel mospic shuttering. Three sizes of tank are available: 1,620, 2,260 and 2,900 gallons. They weigh 2 tons, 21/4 tons and 21/2 tons respectively. It is considered that the tanks could be used to advantage on road and rail vehicles and on freight carrying aircraft. Manufacturers: Marston Excelsior. Wolverhampton, England.

REMOTE EYE RADAR AT LONDON AIRPORT

Marconi's recently gave a demonstration of major technical importance consisting of the transmission of radar information from the Marconi Type S.232 Crystal-Controlled Airport Radar, operating at London Airport, to PPI (Plan Position Indicator) Consoles installed at Farnborough, 20 miles away. This was made possible by the use of new microwave radar link, equipped with high-quality repeaters, using travelling-wave tubes and capable of relaying radar pictures over three or four separate channels.

Without a radar link, the site of a radar display and operations cenire has always had to be near the associated scanning equipment, because of the difficulty and expense of using special cable to link the two. This despite the fact that a suitable site for a radar head is seldem equally suitable for a display centre.

The new microwave radar link overcomes this difficulty pletely, and the radar head and the operations centre can now be miles apart if so required. The system also makes possible the routing of radar information from a number of remotely sited heans to one sui.abiy-p.s.tioned operations centre.

For the demonstration, the microwave link transmitter at London Airport was led with two sets of PPI radar ploture signals, together with synchronising and turning information originating from the Type S.232 ragar head. Television pietures of scenes at London Airport were sent through one of the four channels used, for the benefit of visitors to the demonstration. Normally, however, this channel would be used for transmission of an additional radar PPI picture.

The whole of the signal inwave carrier. This was transa repenser station about 14

Greater distances may be covered by each "hop" if the terrain permits. For a long distance of, say, 250 miles, seven or more "hops" may be employed, the signal-to-roise ratio in each channel remaining bet'er than 30db, after allowing for normal fading conditions.

At Farnbrough a mobile reeclving station picked up the ignals, which, after conversion to their original forms, were reut.d to the display consoles, Switches on two new-spe PPI corsoles permitted selection of either the "raw" PPI picture, or one which had had the permanand refers emeeled from it by the extremely efficient Moving larg. But more than u.at, American businesemen are worried over the increasing shortage of dollars in Europe. Many look for the rhinse "dellar shortage" to become more familiar in uture assessments of Europe's ecoromic potentials. Any cutbuck in Europe's purchases of U.S. goods could reasonably affect such standard US exports as cars, tobacco, textiles, and agricultural products.

Last week American businessmen were encouraged by report that United States might ask the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation to do something to alleviate Europe's shortages. In contrast, most disturbing business community has been the almost steady decline in teck prices since election day,

New York, Nov. 25.

A weekend rally lifted stocks after they had come within touching distance of the year's lows. This was a procedure followed on three previous occasions this year when the average approached the 463 level. This time the decline stopped at slightly above 466 when the list met support.

On Friday industrials rose 4.65 points. They had declined in each of the threepreceding sessions of the four-day week.

Market news generally was on the bulli h side but Wall Street paid more attention to the unergleintics of the Middle East, the strike-crippling shipping, tight money, and some pocrer than expected dividends, Also, there was a continuation of rather heavy tax selling from Monday to Wednesday.

Sales for the week, the Dow-Jones industrial average stood at 472.56 off 8.11 points on the week. Rulls 154.16 off 2.85; utilities 68.35 off 0.46, and 65 stocks 167.78 off 2.46. At the intra-day lows set on Wednesday industrials were down 14.58 pednis from a week ago and rails were down 3.84 points.

Trading involved 1,308 issues. fewest since Sept. 7, of this number 313 gained, 883 declined and 172 held unchanged. A total of 49 set new highs while 808 sof new lows.
